ROOSEVELT FOR THE DIRECT VOTE

In Election of United States Senators.

HE IS IN FAVOR OF AMENDMENT

To Present Constitution--Also Thinks Electoral College Not Needed.

IS FOR THE CANADIAN TREATY

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 11.—The election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people is favored by former President Theo. Roosevelt. He believes the Constitution should be so amended as to provide for popular election. In a speech here to-night at the Lincoln Club banquet Col. Roosevelt came out squarely in favor of the change.

Asserting that the present method of electing Senators was a "relic" of old times and should be remedied, the Colonel also declared himself in favor of abolishing the electoral college in the election of President.

Col. Roosevelt's subject was "Lincoln and Progressive Republicanism." The banquet hall, seating more than 2,000 people, was crowded.

Col. Roosevelt in his address also urged the adoption of the proposed reciprocity treaty with Canada.

Col. Roosevelt said: "One of the progressive policies upon which I think the great majority of progressives are agreed is that United States Senators should be elected by popular vote. The Constitution should, in my judgment, be so amended as to provide for this.

"The insistence upon the election of Senators in some way which shall not permit the people to pass directly upon them, is merely a relic of the same feeling which made the founders of the Constitution trust the election of the President to the electoral college instead of to direct popular vote.

"The same fears of the people expressed now by those who are against choice of Senators by popular vote were expressed a century and a quarter ago by good and wise men who erroneously felt that it was not safe to trust the election of the President to direct popular vote.

"A comparatively short experience convinced the nation that the President should be voted for directly by the people. And although the form of an electoral college has been retained, the actual fact is that the vote for President is a direct vote, the electors having no function except formally to ratify the popular decree—and if it were possible even the slightest function could with advantage be abolished.

"None of the evils prophesied have resulted from the change in the case of the President and the same thing, I am perfectly sure, will happen when the change is made as regards Senators. It will be a change markedly for good—just as much for good as was the change in the case of the President.

"But the United States should under no circumstances surrender one particle of the control it now has as regards the election of Senators. To do so would be a mistake which might have grave and far-reaching consequences and absolutely no argument worth heeding can be advanced in favor of such a change.

For Canadian Treaty. "I feel that we are to be congratulated as a nation upon the likelihood of obtaining a closer reciprocity of tariff and trade relations with Canada. Among all the powers of the earth there is none with which we should desire to be upon more intimate footing of equal rights, to which we should be more closely bound in relations of mutual helpfulness and esteem and good will, than in the case of our great neighbor to the North, whose prosperity and growth should be a matter of pride to all who dwell on the American continent. I welcome the proposed reciprocity as marking a signal advance in bringing about the closest and most friendly relations between the two countries."

Smallpox in Muhlenberg. County health officer Dr. T. J. Slaton had reported to him the latter part of last week what was thought to be some cases of smallpox, and on investigation he declared the ailment was smallpox. There are only two cases, among a camp of men from Hopkins county who are getting out railroad ties near Unity church. The disease is of very light form, and all precaution is being taken to confine the trouble.—[Greenville Record.]

GEORGE HEAD LOCATED IN LESLIE, ARKANSAS

George Head, the Fordsville merchant who disappeared the night of Monday, January 20, after having left home with about $250 en route to Owensboro, has been located in Leslie, Ark. His wife, who is said to be a nervous wreck as the result of having worried over her husband's disappearance, received a telegram from Head last Wednesday morning, stating that he is in Leslie, and is in comparatively good health. He assigned no reason for his sudden disappearance.

Since the disappearance of Head the members of his family have spared no pains to learn of his whereabouts, as they were laboring under the impression that he had met with foul play while in Owensboro.

WANTS THE SPLIT IN CHURCH HEALED

Patton Urges Union of M. E. Church South, and Methodist Church.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was urged strongly by John A. Patton, Chattanooga, Tenn., chairman of the Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

"There is no reason," Mr. Patton said, "why there should be more than one Methodist Church in America to-day."

The split of the church occurred in 1844 over the question of slavery and Mr. Patton insisted that church leaders above and below Mason and Dixon's line believe the time has come when the breach between the sections can be healed permanently.

The spirit of union found expression later in the day when it was decided that the publishing houses located in New York, Cincinnati and Chicago should hereafter be incorporated under one name and be known as "The Methodist Book Concern." The action was the result of instructions issued by the General Conference, which met in Baltimore in 1908, calling upon the publishing interests to seek reincorporation and consolidation.

PRIZES TO BE GIVEN FOR FARMERS' EFFORT

To the A. S. of E. Locals in Hartford Magisterial district:—As a spur to greater effort in building up the A. S. of E. we have decided to offer as a prize a nice banner to the local union showing the best record for the three months ending the last Thursday in March, 1911. The award is to be made by a committee of three, to be selected by the district union and will be based on:

1st. Per cent of old members paying dues.
2d. New members secured.
3d. Amount of farm products pooled, compared with membership of local.

4th. Attendance at local meetings.
Now, friends, we feel sure that any of you will be proud of the distinction of belonging to the banner local in the Hartford district, and the way to get this honor is to get busy. There never was a better time to push the farmers' organization than now. So let us go to work and see who can show the best results by our next meeting, which meets with Heflin Local on the last Thursday in March, 1911. All locals in this district are cordially invited to compete for this prize.

"TAFT AND SURE DEFEAT," SAY SOME

Or "Progressive Republican Candidate, With

A CHANCE TO WIN," SAY OTHERS

The Ultimatum That is Being Put Up to Republicans Everywhere.

GARDNER GIVES HIS REASONS

[By Clyde H. Tavenner Special Washington Correspondent of The Herald] Washington, Feb. 11.—Taft and sure defeat, or a progressive Republican candidate with a chance to win.

This is the ultimatum being put up to Republicans all over the country by the recently organized Progressive Republican league. The striking campaign slogan was coined by Gilson Gardner, one of the press agents of the progressive organization.

If what the progressives say is true, that the re-nomination of Taft means defeat for the Republican party in 1912, it might as well be accepted now that the next President of the United States is to be a Democrat. Mr. Taft seems certain of a re-nomination. This is because he has the necessary machinery to get the nomination.

Gardner gives seven reasons why Taft should not receive a re-nomination:

1. His failure to receive endorsement at the hands of Roosevelt.

2. His alliance with Aldrich, Cannon, Ballinger and others generally credited with connections with special privileges.

3. The hostility of the progressive wing, led by men like LaFollette, Beveridge, Pinchot and Roosevelt.

4. The public disapproval of Taft's bad faith in accepting the Presidency as a progressive, and administering the office as a reactionary.

5. The bad effects of his support of Ballinger and opposition to genuine conservation.

6. Taft's acquiescence in the Aldrich tariff bill, his use of patronage to coerce progressives, his defeat of an income tax, etc.

7. The cumulative effect of these as seen in the repudiation of the party in the late elections.

Opposed to these are the facts that he has the confidence of Wall Street; that there is a strong sentiment in favor of giving a President a second term, and that the regulars in his party favor his re-nomination. But the facts which practically clinch a re-nomination for Taft are these:

1. That the Republican organization is controlled by Big Business;

2. That the Southern delegates are brought under Taft control by federal patronage and cash.

3. That the Southern delegates, combined with the delegates who can be delivered by State machines controlled by such as Penrose, Lorimer, Crane, Aldrich, Carter and Warren, make up two-thirds of the delegates to the national Republican convention.

"Shall it be Taft and sure defeat," demand the progressives, "or a progressive Republican candidate with a chance to win?"

It looks as if the answer is to be: "Taft and sure defeat!"

ALL CAN BE ASSOCIATE EDITORS IF THEY LIKE

The newspaper man is blamed for a whole lot of things he can't help, such as using partiality in mentioning visitors, giving news about some folks and leaving others out, etc. He simply prints all the news he can find. Some people inform him about such things and others do not. An editor should not be expected to know the names and residence of all your uncles, aunts and cousins, even if he should see them get on or off the train. Tell us about it. It's news that make the newspaper, and every man, woman and child can be associate editor if they only will. Never apologize when you give this bit of information to an editor, for if there lives one so dead that he has lost his appreciation of such favors, he is dead, indeed, to every virtue that imparts value to a paper.

MILTON OLIVER FINDS LYON COUNTY TOO HOT

Confessed Night Rider Ready To Leave Kentucky—Arranges For Sale of Farm.

Kuttawa, Ky., Feb. 12.—Milton Oliver, confessed night rider and witness for the prosecution in trials at Hopkinsville, who was recently wounded at his doorstep by a would-be assassin, has arranged for the sale of his farm, consisting of 250 acres, for a cash consideration of $4,000. Preliminary arrangements were closed yesterday with Jess Keeney, of Cadiz, and the transfer of the deed will be made at Eddyville Tuesday.

The sale will not include livestock or farming implements.

Oliver reserves the privilege of remaining on the farm until the first of March, and during this time will testify against Dr. Amos and others, whose cases will be called at the February term of the Christian county Circuit Court. It was said to-day that Oliver will not leave the State until all of the night rider cases are disposed of.

He has mentioned numerous points as prospective locations, no definite conclusion having been reached, but in selecting a future place of residence he is likely to choose a distant one. Since being wounded, Oliver has been under guard of militiamen. He has been able to work his crop of tobacco and place it in bond. He sold the weed to the Imperial Tobacco Company in Eddyville at $8 around and has delivered a portion of the crop.

Do you know that group can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all dealers.

PER CAPITA WEALTH OF UNITED STATES, $34.43

Washington, Feb. 13.—The per capita wealth of the United States as based upon the new census figures is $34.43. Under the census of 1900 it was computed by the Treasury Department as $35.10.

According to the latest estimate the total amount of money now in circulation is $3,211,550,465 as against $3,125,586,720 a year ago. The increase is represented by the coinage of gold.

PARENTAGE OF CHAMP CLARK

His Father Was of a Roving Nature.

A BEAUTIFUL KENTUCKY GIRL

Was Champ's Mother—Reared in a Wilderness, Close to Nature.

CHAMP'S FATHER A DEMOCRAT

While Champ Clark has risen into prominence, his road has not been strewn with roses, and it has been through the hardest kind of digging that he has reached the Speakership.

Born in Anderson county among the cliffs along the Kentucky river, whose scenery is often compared to that of the beautiful Hudson, Clark was immured within the confines of nature. The home of Clark was similar to that of other pioneer homes, consisting of three rooms—the sitting room, the bedroom and the kitchen and dining room combined.

At the time of Clark's birth there were no railroads in this section of the country, and the farmers rode on horseback to the nearest "grocery store" and post-office for their supplies and mail.

Reared in what was then almost a wilderness, Champ Clark in his earlier childhood was a student of nature. He loved the little spring beauties which were found in the woods nestling in the grass and weeds, the old-fashioned thousand-leaf rose, which blossomed in mid-summer, and the goldenrod, which betokened the coming of winter. He knew the voices of the "bob white," the thrush, the mocking bird and a score of other birds of beautiful plumage which made their homes in the hills.

John Hampton Clark, Champ Clark's father, was a native of New Jersey, and was born where Atlantic City now stands. He was a wanderer and roved from Philadelphia to New Orleans, then worked his way up the Mississippi and the Ohio to Louisville. The city proved not to the liking of the vigorous young adventurer, and he finally drifted to Lawrenceburg. There he met Aletha Beauchamp. She was a frail, beautiful girl, and the wanderer quickly succumbed to her charms. He lost all desire to roam further, and after an ardent courtship, persuaded her to become his wife. He was an educated man, a mechanic, genius, and an enthusiastic exponent of the doctrine of Democracy. Mrs. Clark was also well educated for those days, having received six years' "schooling" in a convent.—[Lawrenceburg (Ky.) Cor. Louisville Courier-Journal.]

TAFT'S TIME WASTED TALKING TO FARMERS

Columbus, O., Feb. 10.—Upon the heels of President Taft's speech at the National Corn Show to-day, favoring a reciprocity treaty with Canada, 300 members of the Ohio Corn Improvement Association, in session at the Exposition, adopted resolutions condemning the proposed reduction in the tariff on farm products.

The resolution read: "We doubt the wisdom of throwing open unreservedly our ports to Canadian farm products. By so doing, the American farmer will be unable to obtain a fair compensation for the time and labor which he invests in his business, and we recommend that no action be taken by our National Government that shall be detrimental to his interests."

SHOT THROUGH HEART OVER OLD QUARREL

Eugene Holmes Kills Ed Scott at Drakesboro—Trouble a Year Ago.

Eugene Holmes, a miner, shot and killed Ed Scott, a fellow miner, at Drakesboro at midnight Saturday. The bullet pierced Scott's heart, and death was instantaneous. Following the shooting, Holmes walked to his home and retired. He was later placed in jail.

The shooting is supposed to be the result of a difficulty between the two men about a year ago. It is stated that Holmes met Scott in the railroad yards and said:

"Scott, you stamped me in the face a year ago."

Scott replied: "That is all over now; so let us forget it."

The response was the report of a pistol, and the victim dropped.

The body was removed to an undertaking establishment to be prepared for burial. The remains passed through Owensboro Sunday night, en route to Eldorado, Ill., the former home of the deceased, where the interment took place.

It is stated that Holmes has a good reputation, and is a man who does not drink.

GOVERNOR'S REWARD $500 IN THE THOMPSON CASE

Providence, Ky., Feb. 8.—Yielding to the pressure brought to bear upon him by citizens of Providence and other residents of Webster county, Governor Willson of Kentucky has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the unknown person or persons who murdered H. T. Thompson near a cemetery here on Dec. 26, 1910.

Mayor Ed Montgomery recently appointed a committee of six persons to work secretly on the case and report to him from time to time the progress being made following a mass meeting here after the examining trials of Thomas Thompson, son of the murdered man, and Kerney Benjamin, who were arrested on the charge of being the slayers of Thompson, but were acquitted.

Despite those two arrests and a court of inquiry, a committee is now investigating the matter in an effort to procure evidence.

The total reward for the apprehension and conviction of the murderer is now $1,500.

BASIS OF ALL GOVERNMENT

And How It Applies to the Individual.

OUR REPRESENTATIVE FORM

Of Government—A Review of Conditions Pertinent to the Present.

HUMAN VAGARIES OF ALL TIMES

(Written for The Herald and the first of a series of articles discussing governmental policies.)

"It is easy to hold fast a door which, once fairly opened, it may be impossible to shut; it is easy to prevent a movement which, once it gathers way, may prove irresistible."

Among the last public utterances of Patrick Henry, that profound student of social organization, who, when fired by the spirit of liberty shot up from the commonality like some blazing, dazzling meteor, whose opinion on public affairs the world awaited with bated breath, whose bold and masterful defense of human rights electrified mankind and the impress of whose matchless genius glows in every line of our constitutional bulwarks against Federal aggression, was this solemn warning to his countrymen:

"For, if ever you recur to another change, you may bid adieu forever to representative government. You can never exchange it but for a monarchy." It was Lord Byron who said: "A thousand years scarce serve to form a State that an hour may lay in the dust."

In its ultimate analysis, the object of all government is the security of the private home, and the natural right as well as desire to own that home is the basis of all its hopes and possibilities. The right to own property is the clutch of steel that binds society together. Without it society would disintegrate and whatever vitiate that desire or abridges that right, can have but one of two endings—either revolt or decay.

From the dawn of history, experimental government has drenched with blood the pathway of human advancement. The field is well nigh exhausted—there's nothing new under the sun—and, in the light this bloody history sheds upon our times, it is passing strange to find so many adventurers, bold and confident, so ready to drag from limbo a lot of old theories—tried, repudiated centuries ago—trot them down to the foot-lights and with much sawing of arms, grabbing at stars and firing off old boss pistols, exploit them as "New." God save the mark!

Edmond Burke says: "The people never give up their liberties but under some delusion."

In this article I trust I shall betray, as I feel, no partisan spirit, my sole object being an honest appeal to the calmer, better judgment and innate patriotism of the reader.

So many of our good citizens to the manor born, chafing under well nigh intolerable conditions, in search of the cause and its remedy, overlooking the important fact that a large majority of our grievances may be traced to our own inexcusable neglect of an exacting public duty which demands that a share of our time and talent shall be devoted to public affairs, are inclined to go off in all sorts of projects and experiments. History affords so many sad examples of this same fatal error that it is both painful and alarming to see good men, whose loyalty to their country can't be questioned, mistaking the evils of which they complain as due to some inherent defect of our system and seeking redress upon the same treacherous grounds underneath which volcanoes smoulder—"flying to evils they know not of, rather than endure those we have." In veering from the rocks of Scylla they are being drawn into the whirlpool of Charybides.

For thousands of years the boldness of our liberty-loving race have borne aloft the banner of individualism. Its progress as it groped its way through the benighted ages is marked by the blood and bones of countless martyrs, but its advance has been steady, substantial and sure. These dauntless, unconquerable spirits, after gathering from the ages, profiting by the bad examples and preserving the good, at last bequeathed the sublime work of political evolution to the patriots of our times, who, after more than thirty years of prayerful and arduous labor, devised a system of Representative Democracy; not perfect, to be sure, since nothing human can be perfect, but the freest, justest, wisest, and most benevolent the world ever saw.

If, then, this be true—and who can gainsay it, that representative government is the only system suitable to the temper, character and state of our civilization?—would it not be well for the restless citizen who is yielding to the spirit of discontent, to pause and inquire whether some share of blame may not lie at his own door, whether the trouble may not lie in the people themselves rather than in the system.

In republics, the private citizen, not a king, is crowned with sovereignty. Are we, upon whom this awful responsibility rests, measuring up to its requirements, its honor, its dignity and its duty? If not, if this be the "damned spot," then, mark you well, for the same reason, any other system is foredoomed to tragic failure.

It is stark folly to imagine that a government can reform and elevate its people. In the nature of things, this cannot be. We may reform our government, because it is our creature, but the State should pay somebody to keep the man who believes the creature can reform the creator. No crank or enthusiast, however eager he may be to riot like a bull in a china shop and stalk in where angels dare not tread, can ever make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. The only possible reform begins within the human heart. All others are mere arrogance, intolerance and despicable shams. For centuries, I repeat, our dauntless race have been the pioneers of liberty, watching examples furnished by the ceaseless struggle between the great master wheel in the center and the little wheels in the circumference, seizing upon whatever fostered freedom and equality of opportunity. That they had rich fields to glean from, history amply proves.

Renan says: "You may search in vain the Roman law before Constantine for a single passage against Freedom of Thought. The history of imperial government furnishes no instance of prosecution for entertaining an abstract doctrine, and men who would have gone to the stake in the middle ages, lived tranquilly under the law." Trojan, in a letter of instructions to Pliny the Younger, whom he had appointed governor of a province in Asia Minor, charged that under no circumstances should the Christians be prosecuted on anonymous information, as it would be establishing a precedent wholly opposed to the spirit of the age. It was Roman tolerance and magnanimity that cheerfully set up beside their own the strange divinities of conquered nations. It was Roman liberality that saved, in the outset, Christianity itself from utter destruction at the hand of Judaism. Five hundred years before our Christian era the Romans restrained these despots with a fixed constitution.

The skilled architects of our organic law knew the Jews had tried the Judges; that Rome had tried a Republic; that the Christians had revised their law from the "Old" to the "New;" that Greece had tried everything. They knew we owed our religion to the Semetic race, but they also knew this race had sought to make the Church the head of the State. The Aryan race had combated this tendency for centuries and, from the lessons of this struggle, it was determined to make separation organic. Five hundred years before our Bill of Rights, the rude, rugged old barons of England had extorted from King John the "Charter of English Liberty." And yet, with all of her fruitful past to guide her, it took a thousand years to build up her splendid system.

But the spirit of liberty was not born at Runnymede. It had only been intensified and emboldened by that glorious admixture of Roman, Angel and Saxon blood, and the feudal system of Europe was but the manifestations of the lusty growth of individualism, which a century before Christ, had given new hope and courage in revealing to the hungry heart of the lowly that the soul of a Lazarus was just as precious at the gates of heaven as that of Dives; that the guardian angels poise and hover over cot as well as castle.

INTOLERANCE OF RELIGIOUS KIND

Is Foreign to the True American Spirit.

JOHNSON'S CASE A SPECIMEN

Of How Religious Antagonism Can be Magnified and Worked Up.

RELIGIOUS FANATIC A MENACE

Hon. Ben Johnson, a prominent candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky, has issued a card withdrawing from the race, and gives as the reason that he is the victim of religious proscription. He cites some startling instances where he considers a sinister and sympathetic organization has been secretly effected to stir again the religious prejudice that we had thought had been scotched years ago.

Mr. Johnson is, and has always been, a member of the Catholic Church. All who have known him have been apprised of the fact, for neither he nor his friends were ashamed of it. But just why that should be a handicap to him in his political aspirations, is more than we can fathom, any more than if he had been a Methodist or a Presbyterian, an Episcopal or a Baptist. What a man's doctrinal belief has to do with his personal fitness or unfitness to hold an office of trust, is a problem that we cannot solve.

There is probably no greater or more ferocious fanaticism than religious fanaticism. Charles Dickens weaves the "No Popery" riots in London in 1775 into a very entertaining story. The fiercest, the most active and the most violent of the rioters was an idiot, to whom the mystic words had no significance. But he fought with the bravery worthy of a patriotic cause.

In this country we have had the anti-Masonic party, which had for its slogan, "Down with secret orders." In Kentucky we had the Know-Nothing party, which started up the senseless cry against all persons of foreign birth. This terminated in the Bloody Monday riots in Louisville, where every man with a foreign countenance had his face smashed with a black-jack. Sixteen years ago, the State of Kentucky elected a man to the Governorship who was secretly a member of the American Protective Association, a political aggregation with a platform tending to inflame the minds of the ignorant against the Catholics.

It may be that Mr. Johnson magnified the importance of the opposition. We do not believe he did it designedly. We have known him personally for twenty years, and during all that time he has shown himself a man of honor and integrity. The primary election proposition had not sufficiently progressed to determine whether he would have won the nomination or not. In fact, many good and loyal Democrats had not satisfied themselves whether the proposed primary was to be on the level or a frame-up. Mr. Johnson could not, therefore, have issued his card of withdrawal under the impression of defeat.

Of course, all will understand that

FROM SCHOOL TEACHER TO MULTI-MILLIONAIRE

Is the Remarkable Story of a Kentucky Man—J. C. C.
Mayo's Fortune.

John C. Calhoun Mayo, of Paintsville, Johnson county, is the richest man in Kentucky. Twenty-five years ago he was a teacher in the Kentucky mountains, with nothing save his earnings. To-day, at the age of forty-six, he is one of the country's multi-millionaires with a fortune conservatively estimated at $20,000,000 and one that will continue to grow.

The story of this Kentucky school teacher's rise to great wealth is one of the most interesting ever recorded. In many ways Mayo is the most remarkable millionaire in the country. His is the first great fortune that has ever been built in Kentucky by a Kentuckian from Kentucky resources only. It was not due to any stroke of luck, such as the discovery of a mine, nor was it due to the gradual development of a business. It was due to Mayo's ability to see an opportunity and to take advantage of it through frugality and thrift that continued many years, for all of Mayo's fortune started from the money he saved out of his earnings as a school teacher.

Although he was born and has spent his life in a region where Republicans are in the majority, Mr. Mayo has been a life-long Democrat. His business activities gave him no time for politics in his earlier years, but of late he has been more interested. He holds a high place in the councils of his party and he has received ballots for United States Senator in the Kentucky Legislature. There have been persistent reports of late that Mr. Mayo's name will be offered for Senator before the next Legislature, but close friends say he is not a candidate. Mr. Mayo's career and his achievements are a matter of pride to Kentuckians. At the age of forty-six he has risen, by his talents and energies alone, from the obscure position of a country school teacher in the Kentucky mountains to that of a master of tremendous capital and one of the most forceful factors in the development of Eastern Kentucky, which promises a new and better era for the whole State.

BREATHES THERE THE MAN.

Breathes there the man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself hath said,
"This is my own, my native land!"
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned,
As home his footsteps he hath turned
From wandering on a foreign strand?
If such there breathe, go, mark him well!
For him no minstrel raptures swell.
High though his titles, proud his name,
Boundless his wealth as wish can claim—
Despite those titles, power, and pelf,
The wretch, concentered all in self,
Living shall forfeit fair renown,
And, doubly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

HIGHER COURT POOLING LAW

Upholding the Crecellus Tobacco Law.

IMPORTANT TO ALL POOLERS

How It Affects People Who Grow Tobacco and Sell to Agents.

ALSO AS AFFECTING TENANTS

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 9.—Affirming the judgment of the Mason Circuit Court in the case of the Commonwealth against Thos. Malone, a tobacco buyer, the Court of Appeals held, in an opinion written by Judge Settle, that a tobacco buyer who sells pooled tobacco and has no interest in raising the tobacco, is not amenable to the statute prescribing a penalty for the selling of pooled tobacco. The court also holds in the same case that the buyer of pooled tobacco is amenable to the penalty prescribed in the same statute "for the buying of pooled tobacco," but that in order to punish the buyer of tobacco for the offense of selling pooled tobacco, he must be indicted for buying pooled tobacco.

The opinion is the first construction of these features of the famous Crecellus law, passed by the Legislature here three years ago for the benefit of the Burley Tobacco Society and other organizations pooling farm products. Malone was indicted for unlawfully and knowingly selling and disposing of a crop of pooled tobacco without the consent of the authorized agent selected to sell it and in violation of section 3940 of the Kentucky statutes. The tobacco had been raised by one Mitchell on the place of a man named Tierney, and Mitchell sold the tobacco to Malone. The court says this being true, the act of Malone in selling the tobacco did not make him amenable to the penalty prescribed by the statute. The court says:

"From the reading of section 3941a, Kentucky statutes, it will be observed that the crops pooled under this provision must be 'raised' by the person pooling them. The owner of tobacco or other crops which he did not raise, cause to be raised by a tenant or in some manner assist in or authorize to be raised, cannot come under the provisions of the statute.

"The object of the statute is to protect the grower of tobacco against the buyers of the product, who, in the absence of such protection as the statute affords, might by combination make themselves have the absolute power to fix the prices at which the grower must sell. Therefore the mere buyer of tobacco raised by others is excluded from its benefits, and this being true, he cannot legally enter into or be bound by the pooling contracts authorized by the statute.

"While the statute provides that one who buys of a grower, tobacco in violation of a contract where it has been pooled, makes himself amenable to the punishment that may be inflicted upon the grower for selling the same in violation of such contract, Malone is not indicted in this case for buying of Mitchell tobacco which he had pooled, but for selling same."

Grant Circuit Court in the case of E. M. Cook against the Commonwealth, the Court of Appeals holds, in opinion written by Chief Justice Hobson, that a tenant should not be indicted under the Kentucky statutes for selling pooled tobacco if the landlord, without his knowledge or consent, sells the pooled tobacco in which he has an interest. As a tenant on the farm of J. W. Martin, Cook owned one-half interest in a crop of tobacco sold for $400, on which Martin had loaned Cook $200. Only Cook's part of the tobacco had been pooled. During Cook's absence from the farm, Martin sold the tobacco and Cook was indicted on the charge of selling pooled tobacco and fined $190. The court says Cook should have been given peremptory instructions, and that "while the rule is that a subsequent ratification relates back to the beginning and makes the transaction as if the proper authority had been originally given, the principle cannot be applied in criminal cases, for this would be to punish Cook, not for disposing of his crop, but for not complaining of what Martin had done without knowledge or consent."

FIRST GUN FOR O'REAR FIRED AT BEAVER DAM

All Other Republicans Must Take a Back Seat As to Prominence.

The Bowling Green Messenger says:

It is supposed that our Butler county friend, Commodore Holeman, dominated the senatorial district convention that nominated him at its session at Beaver Dam. Any man who could run the steam roller over Harvey Myers, of Rochester, and flatten him out in such a neat manner, ought surely to be some pumpkins in a convention in which he is the only candidate.

Purely in a perfunctory manner, the convention indorsed the administration of Governor Willson and said a few kind words for Senator Bradley. But when it came to indorsing Judge O'Rear, the Commodore and the convention came out strong. This is an exact reproduction, as well as the Republican Louisville Herald could catch it:

"Believing that Judge E. C. O'Rear more nearly represents the interests of the great farming and laboring classes of the people of Kentucky than any one else who has been suggested for the Republican nomination for Governor, and having the utmost confidence in his patriotism and excellent ability and knowing him to be fully qualified to defend the principles of the Republican party in the coming campaign, we indorse him for the Republican nomination for Governor."

Now, oughtn't this to jar your preserves? Here's Franks, over at Owensboro, who could be induced to take the forlorn hope of a Republican nomination and go half way to catch it.

Then, again, there's Attorney-General James Breathitt, of Hopkinsville, who has been sitting on a gubernatorial egg for the past year.

To say nothing of Speight, of Mayfield, who is not averse to grasping tail-hold expectations, after holding out for front-end pretensions.

Why should Commodore Holeman jump over the boundless waste between the Purchase and the Big Sandy to pick out a gubernatorial running mate? If Judge O'Rear "more nearly represents the interests of the great farming and laboring classes of the people of Kentucky than any one else who has been suggested," then Governor Willson is repudiated, for the defendant Judge figuratively pointed his finger in the Governor's face on one occasion and said: "You can't drive an idea through an Anglo-Saxon's head with a bayonet." For which act of lese majeste, the Judge was called down good and proper. The Governor certainly tried to drive a few ideas through the heads of the people of Muhlenberg with a bayonet. Was he wrong? Was Judge O'Rear right? There's a little matter that Commodore Holeman can settle with his constituents when he mounts the raging stump.

ENDS HER LIFE IN DEEP WELL

Mrs. Preston Moore Became Despondent.

SHE HAD BEEN IN ILL HEALTH

For Two Years—Had Spent the Entire Day With Her Children.

SHE LIVED IN McLEAN COUNTY

Mrs. Preston Moore, nearly sixty years of age and for many years a resident of McLean county, while suffering with melancholia following a nervous disorder of two years' standing, committed suicide by drowning herself in a well at her home some time during Wednesday night. The body was discovered Thursday morning by relatives, who, finding a cane and a pair of glasses belonging to the aged woman, lying beside the well, concluded that she must have taken her life, and dragged in the well, finally bringing the body of the lifeless woman to the surface.

Mrs. Moore had been in poor health for the past two years, and at times became very melancholy and despondent, but she spent the entire day Wednesday with her children and seemed to be in unusually good spirits. As to what prompted her to commit the rash deed during the night, is not known.

The family retired about the usual time on Wednesday night, and nothing out of the ordinary was noticed in the conduct or demeanor of Mrs. Moore, but some time during the night, or early morning, she left her home and quietly made her way to the well, which is about twenty-five feet deep and filled to within five feet of the top, and ended her life.

The catalogue mail-order house in Justice of the Peace Jones was summoned and an inquest was held over the remains, the verdict of the jury being to the effect that the woman suicided while in a state of great despondency which was caused by nervous trouble.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

LUCKY HORSESHOE NAIL
—OWNER'S EXPERIENCE

Only a few days ago a Hartford man who owns a factory for making horseshoe nails called on a jeweler with a nail having his own factory mark on it and wanted it shaped into a ring and wanted it doubly gilded. Although it bore his own factory mark, it came from Mexico, where he had bought a large tract of land. Riding on a burro over his broad acres one evening, he chanced to see something glisten in the road and dismounted, thinking it might be a discovery of mineral of value. Instead he picked up a horseshoe nail, and as he examined it he noticed the brand of his own factory in Hartford. Just then bullets began to sing over his head, and his burro, pierced by fifteen of them, fell dead. All around him Mexican bandits rose from their ambush and made him prisoner. They looked him over, held a parley, and, having discovered that he was not the man they wanted, set him free. He attributed the fact that he is still alive to his having dismounted when he saw the nail, and as the nail from his own mill was the cause of his good fortune, he decided to have it gilded and engraved so that he can wear it always.—[New York Press.

THAT OLD HOT BRICK
—FOND REMEMBRANCES

When I go home at night and find my room is freezing cold, I always think of comforts that I had in days of old. One thing I call to mind just now, I knew in time now dead, is that hot brick that mother put, in flannels, in my bed. Each night she'd go and get the brick just when the clock struck 8. 'Twas heated in the oven, on the stove or in the grate. I'd jump in bed and cover up and put my feet on it, and with a certain shivering boy it always made a hit. I haven't had a heated brick for 30 years, I guess. I'm sorry that I haven't, too, because I must confess I've seen cold nights—yes, lots of them—when one hot brick in bed, would sure have been a comfort and a blessing—on the dead.—[New York Telegram.

CONVENTION AGAINST PARCELS POST LAW

To Assemble in Nashville—Merchants From Everywhere Are Going to Attend.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 11.—The retail merchant, particularly of the Southern country, has for some years past recognized the fact that the catalogue mail order house in the large city is a positive injury both to the merchant and the consumer. The situation is succinctly stated in a letter received recently at the headquarters of the Parcels Post Convention or, more accurately speaking, anti-parcels post convention, to be held in Nashville, Feb. 28, March 1, 2, and 3. A merchant in prosperous Alabama town says: "Our people send their money to the 'cat' houses anywhere from ten to a hundred days in advance, and make us wait anywhere about the same length of time for our money, thus making it doubly hard on us."

There is now pending before Congress a bill providing for the transportation of merchandise through the mails. It is a measure favorable to the catalogue houses in the large cities and detrimental alike to the retailer and the wholesaler who transact business after recognized and established methods. Southern merchants are almost a unit in the belief that a parcels post law would immediately make the mail-order business many times over more injurious to legitimate trade than it has been up to this time. In order to protect their own interests, they have prepared for the holding of a great convention in Nashville to crystallize sentiment against the bill and have it presented in concrete form before Congress.

The movement is in the hands of an executive committee of representative retail merchants, with R. L. Burch, of Nashville, as Chairman.

Why not change the name of our national capital to Whitewashing-ton?

This is the season of the year when farmers and candidates are looking after their bacon.

Evidently this Congress will not be too short to spend a big lot of the "ultimate consumer's" money.

At least we ought to get a little work yet out of Congress before the Chautauqua lecture season opens up.

It was probably just a remembrance of "blocks of five" that prompted the Adams county, O., voters to do as they did.

The Steel Trust has cut the salary of its President to $50,000 a year. Just think of it! Only just about what the people's President gets!

The fact that Mr. Johnson had any religious belief at all, seems to have surprised some people, as most men leave their religion at home while running for office.

It is said there is a wealthy woman in Denver who has never worn a hat, which provokes a Colorado paper to say: "Most any woman could get wealthy that way." Nearly a fact.

They are about to construct a million-dollar jail in Havana, and from all accounts as to the way things are going down there, all of it will probably be needed for the accommodation of the grafters alone.

The jailer of Christian county, Ky., advertises a gallows for sale—slightly used, but good as new. No doubt some of us know of a few men whom it could be used on to good purpose, but times are hard and we just haven't got the money.

With a little over two weeks of the Congressional session remaining, none of the important measures before Congress when the session began have been disposed of. The people's money has been lavishly used for some very costly legislation that failed to legislate.

It now seems to be up to somebody to explain or define what constitutes "work" in the efforts put forth by a layman in the interest of a candidate. At Danville, Ill., several voters testified that they did not sell their suffrage, but accepted money for a little "work" done for a man running for office.

Catching the spirit of the times and aligning himself with Democratic, and modern progressive ideas of his own party, former President Roosevelt comes out strong for direct vote in the election of U. S. Senators. And straightway some of his party men chalked up another black mark against him.

Ex-Gov. Beckham has disposed of his interest in the Kentucky State Journal at Frankfort and retired from the editorial field to the exclusive practice of law. The State Journal has been consolidated with the Frankfort News and the paper will be issued as the News-Journal. Mr. Beckham made a success of the State Journal and well evinced his fine ability as an editor.

If you have dizzy spells, ringing in the ears, confusion of ideas, momentary attacks of vertigo, or kindred symptoms—well, that may be an indication that you have been reading the political news of Kentucky a little too closely of late. Nothing serious about it, however. You'll recover all right. It's a common ailment and in fact is a good indication that you are keeping posted and up with the times in current information.

A preacher in a neighboring church was recently heard to remark, as he put the idea into action at the beginning of a sermon, that he would leave the pulpit for the nonce and come down where he could get nearer the people. This evinced a very commendable spirit, but in these modern times of towering and expansive headgear, the preacher would perhaps be more appreciated, and much better seen by the audience, at the summit of a six-foot ladder.

Several papers of the State seem to have followed the rule of the two Hartford papers in charging a small straight rate per line for all obituaries, resolutions of respect, &c. We are finding the new plan much more satisfactory than the old. No reasonable person can find fault with it. Of course all news accounts of deaths are free, where they do not take the form of obituaries or resolutions, and we are always glad to get them. But obituary notices are of interest to few outside of the immediate relatives and friends of the deceased and a small cash rate is only fair to the papers publishing them.

Occupying the first two columns of the second page of The Herald to-day will be found the first of a series of articles to be written by one well known to the old readers of this paper. It is an appeal to the private citizen to do his full duty as a sovereign; to resume the reins of government not only as the only remedy for our public evils, but thus justifying the confidence reposed in us by the founders of our free institutions and demonstrating that representative government is the best. It will be observed that while these articles reveal an undercurrent of a somewhat sobered mind, it has lost none of its honest and aggressive spirit, and that his arguments, as they always were, are strong and conclusive.

James M. Yewell Dead.

James M. Yewell, one of the best known and most highly respected farmers in Daviess county, died at his home about three miles southeast of Owensboro, on the Hartford road, in the Zion neighborhood, Sunday night shortly after midnight, of infirmities incident to old age. The funeral took place from the family residence Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, with services conducted by Rev. J. A. Bennett, of Utica. The interment was in Elmwood cemetery, and was in charge of the Masons, of which order the deceased had been a life-long member.

All Skin Troubles

Are overcome by using Dr. Bell's Antiseptic Salve. It is as pleasant to use as pure cream and is guaranteed to give satisfaction. 25c a box. m

HE TAKES NO STOCK IN THE GERM THEORY

Henderson, Ky., Feb. 11.—The Common Council passed on its first reading an ordinance providing for the medical inspection of the public schools of this city and providing for the appointment of an inspector by the School Board and prescribing his duties. This ordinance was urged by the Board of Health, Woman's Club and others.

It was opposed by only one Councilman, Dr. W. S. Galloway, who said that the doctors were "all bug crazy" and that he was "raised in a mud-daubed schoolhouse in the country, where you could stick your fingers in the chunks of mud between the logs, and we all drank out of the same drinking cup and there was not a healthier set anywhere than that bunch of children, and we didn't have any sterilized rags to wipe the dust off the sterilized desks."

THE COUNTY PAPER AN ACTUAL MONEY-SAVER

"There are some who withhold from the local publisher the small amount that his publication costs, not considering, apparently, the real money-saver that it is to the family," says the Chipley (Fla.) Banner. This, of course, is only meant for a subscription list boost—but it is none the less true, and certainly important. The average cost of a local newspaper is two cents or less a copy, and, as the Banner correctly says, "no man ever subscribed for a weekly newspaper that did not in the course of the year save the price many times over by consulting its pages in regard to purchases and otherwise making use of the information contained therein." The country or city paper is a necessity in every family, and the cost is trifling when compared to the usefulness and importance of its presence in the house and business place. The progressive farmer, merchant and business man understands this, and does not depend upon his neighbors for the news or general information.

BRADLEY COMES OUT FOR TREATY

Washington, Feb. 13.—Without any reservation Senator Bradley came out to-day in favor of President Taft's Canadian reciprocity. He will vote for the ratification of the treaty. In this respect he and Representative Langley differ. They seldom disagree, but in this matter they have come to the parting of the ways.

Langley says he will not vote for the treaty. "It puts lumber on the free list," said he. "In the summer of 1909, when the tariff was being revised, I nearly ran my legs off trying to get a high tariff on lumber. It would look very inconsistent now if I should vote to wipe out that tariff entirely."

All of the Democratic Congressmen from Kentucky were prepared when the House met to-day to back up Taft's Canadian reciprocity treaty with their votes.

MAIMED CERVANTES.

Bravery in Battle of the Famous Author of "Don Quixote."

An incident of the battle of Lepanto, which broke the power of the Turks in Europe, has an interest for students of literature. "In the Marquesa gallery"—wrote from Commander Curry's—"Sea Wolves in the Mediterranean"—was lying in his bed, sick of a fever, a young man twenty-four years of age, a Spaniard of Alcalá de Henares, the son of honorable parents, we are told, although these parents were poor. When this young man heard that a battle was imminent he rose from his bed and demanded of his captain, Francisco San Pedro, that he should be placed in the post of greatest danger. The captain and others, his friends, counseled him to remain in his bed. "Senores," replied the young man, "what would be said of Miguel de Cervantes should he take this advice? On every occasion up to this day on which his enemies have offered battle to his majesty I have served like a good soldier, and today I intend to do so in spite of this sickness and fever." He was given command of twelve soldiers in a shallop and all day was to be seen where the combat raged most fiercely. He received two wounds in the chest and another which cost him the loss of his left hand. To those to whom he proudly displayed them in after years he was accustomed to say, "Wounds in the face or the chest are like stars which guide one through honor to the skies." Of him the chronicler says, "He continued the rest of his life with honorable memory of this wonderful occurrence, and, although he lost the use of his left hand, it added to the glory of his right." How glorious was that right hand is known to all readers of "El Ingenioso Hidalgo Don Quixote de la Mancha."

Plucked Triumph Out of Trouble. An Indianapolis retail merchant recently took advantage of an accident which happened to his store.

A runaway trolley car had crashed into his show window, wrecking it. While the crowd of people who had been attracted by the collision were still gathered about the front of the store the enterprising retailer came struggling through the wreckage and placed a large card bearing the words "All cars stop at Blank's" in a prominent place. The effect was forthcoming.—System.

TOLSTOY WANTED BLOOD.

His Quarrel With Turgeneff and the Reconciliation That Followed.

Raymond -Recoy in the Paris Figaro gives the following account of an early encounter between Tolstoy and Turgeneff, which shows the Russian sage in a different frame of mind from the one in which the world has since come to know him:

It was on the estate of his friend, the poet Fet, near Yasnaya. Turgeneff was among the invited guests. The hostess inquired after his daughter, who was being reared in France. Turgeneff spoke highly of his English governess. "With a truly British exactitude," he said, "she requested me to fix the sum which my daughter might spend for charity. And now she teaches her pupil to mend the ragged clothes of the poor."

"And you consider that a good thing?" asked Tolstoy.

"Certainly," replied the other. "It brings the benefactor into direct contact with the persons whom he is helping."

"On my part, I think that a well dressed child who handles dirty and ill smelling rags is playing a hypocritical and theatrical farce."

"I must ask you not to speak in this way," exclaimed Turgeneff, with menacing looks.

"Why should I not say what I am convinced is the truth?" remarked Tolstoy.

"You think, then, that I am educating my daughter badly," and, while Fet was interceding, "If you will talk in that way I shall box your ears." Then he left the room, begging his hosts to pardon his abrupt departure.

Tolstoy also went. At the neighboring station he wrote to Turgeneff demanding an apology. He ordered pistols and tried to provoke his rival to a duel. Turgeneff's answer, very dignified, brought the apology demanded by Tolstoy. He closed by saying that he thought it best that two men with such opposite tempers should henceforth break off all relations. Tolstoy, carried away by his anger (it was in 1861), declined to be satisfied with such an answer. He felt that he had been gravely offended. He demanded reparation by arms. He therefore repeated his provocations. His friend Fet, who attempted to pacify him, succeeded only in drawing from him this vigorous reply: "I beg of you henceforth not to write to me any more. I shall return your letters unopened, the same as I do with Turgeneff's." After these occurrences Turgeneff returned to France, where he passed the greater part of his time. Some months later, on reflection, Tolstoy regretted his violence. Seized with remorse, he sent Turgeneff a letter asking his pardon. "I find it exceedingly painful," he wrote, "to think that I have made an enemy of you."

Turgeneff forgave, as one may imagine, but the complete and definitive reconciliation took place much later.

OLD ENGLISH HOUSES.

In the Days of Wooden Huts, Thatched Roofs and Clay Floors.

The habitations of English common people for centuries consisted of a wooden hut of one room, with the fire built in the center. To this hut, if a man increased in family and wealth, a lean-to was added and later another and another. The roofs were of thatch, the beds of loose straw or straw beds with bolsters of the same laid on the floor or perhaps eventually shut in by a shelf and ledge like the berths of a ship or by a small closet.

The Saxon thane or knight built a more pretentious "hall," a large open room like the Roman atrium with a lofty roof thatched or covered with slates or wooden shingles. In the center of the hard clay floor burned great fires of dry wood whose thin acrid smoke escaped from openings in the roof, above the hearth or by the doors, windows and openings under the eaves of the thatch.

By day the "hearthsmen" and visitors when not working or fighting sat on long benches on either side of the fire and, as John Hay puts it, "calmly drank and japed" or, gathering at long boards placed on trestles, regaled themselves on some sort of porridge with fish and milk or meat and ale.

At night straw or rushes spread on the floor formed beds for the entire company in the earlier and ruder days, when the "baser sort" were glad to share their straw with the cows.—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

The Cabal.

The term "cabal" as applied to secret factions of any kind had its rise in England about 1667, being first applied to the cabinet of Charles II. and formed from the initials of the cabinet members' names—Lord Clifford, Lord Ashley, the Duke of Buckingham, Lord Arlington and the Duke of Lauderdale—C, A, B, A, L. Since that day it has been customary, in all English speaking lands at least, to apply the name to any secret conclave, especially in politics.

The Way She Saw It.

"You must not mock people, Hazel. Once upon a time, the Bible says, a crowd of little children mocked a good man named Elisha, and two bears came out of the forest and killed forty-two of them."

"Wasn't that an awful thing for their mothers?"—Newark News.

Useless Telling.

"You can always tell an Englishman," said the Briton proudly. "Of course you can," replied the Yankee, "but it doesn't do any good, because he thinks he knows it all."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Foley Kidney Pills

Are tonic in action, quick in results. A special medicine for all kidney and bladder disorders. Mary Abbott, Wolfboro, N. H., says: "I was afflicted with a bad case of rheumatism, due to the uric acid that my kidneys failed to clear out of my blood. I was so lame in my feet, joints and back that it was agony for me to step. I used Foley Kidney Pills for three days, when I was able to get up and move about and the pains were all gone. This great change in condition I owe to Foley Kidney Pills and recommend them to any one suffering as I have." For sale by all dealers. m

KILLED BY IMPACT OF ANOTHER'S BODY

Chicago, Feb. 11.—A man's body hurled through the air when struck by the Overland Limited train, killed another man last night and seriously injured a third.

The man struck was Edward Donahue, foreman of a gang of laborers. He survived the effects until to-day. The train, on its way to the Pacific coast, had not yet cleared the Chicago and Northwestern railroad yards here when the accident occurred. Donahue, with fifty of his men, were at work cleaning snow from the tracks.

The foreman apparently saw the locomotive approaching, but before he could escape he was struck and his body shot through the air, keeling over in an instant the other two workmen who were fifteen feet distant.

Clifford Rander Dead.

Clifford Rander, the twelve-year-old son of the late Wm. Fender, and stepson of Felix Shafer, died very suddenly at his home in the Liberty neighborhood, last Saturday afternoon, of brain fever. After funeral services conducted by Rev. Brown, his remains were interred in the West Providence cemetery Monday afternoon. Clifford had been complaining a few days but was not thought to be seriously ill until Saturday morning, when a physician was sent for and was soon at the bedside of the boy whom he saw was past all human aid, and Clifford soon passed away.

DEATH OF WILLIAM HARRISON TAYLOR

The death of Mr. William Harrison Taylor occurred at his home on Washington street, Hartford, Thursday morning at 2 o'clock. For several months he had been in very bad health and an invalid. Wednesday afternoon it was thought the end had come, but he appeared to rally, death coming a short time later. Mr. Taylor was well known throughout the county, and many will be sorry to learn of his death.

Besides a wife, four children survive him, as follows: Mr. Henry B. Taylor and Mrs. B. F. Zimmerman, of Louisville, Mrs. W. M. Fair and Miss Eva Taylor of this city.

The funeral services were conducted Friday morning at 10 o'clock from the Methodist church, of which denomination Mr. Taylor had been a faithful member for many years. The services were conducted by Rev. Virgil Elgin, assisted by Rev. J. W. Bruner. Interment followed at Oakwood. He was a good man and will be greatly missed.

MOTHER OF JAMES BOYS PASSED AWAY ON TRAIN

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 10.—Mrs. Zeralda Samuel, mother of the famous bandits, Jesse and Frank James, died on a train near here this afternoon. She was aged 86 years.

Mrs. Samuel was on her way to Kansas City from Fletcher, Okla., where she had been visiting her son Frank, who has a large farm there.

For 20 years she kept her two boys from being captured by her wit and courage, and while the whole West was hunting them she was ever ready to go to their defense.

It was while guarding her home that one of her arms was blown off by a bomb which detectives had secreted near the house in an effort to blow it up.

Her first husband was a Baptist minister.

CASE CLOSED BY MOTHER'S PRAYER

Pathetic Scene in Henderson County Jail.

HIS MOTHER FOLLOWS HIM IN Dropping on Knees, Tells Almighty How She Had Raised Her Boy.

TRAGIC END OF MURDER TRIAL

Henderson, Ky., Feb. 10.—With a mother's prayer, just as the murder case of Chester Fentress was opened here on Monday morning, so was it closed this afternoon when the jail doors clanged behind him. Following the jury's sentence of life imprisonment, Fentress was led to the jail. His mother and father followed him into the county prison and went up to the very door of the cage.

On her knees in front of the judge's bench at the beginning of the trial, the aged mother was the central figure of a dramatic moment as she prayed aloud for justice to be done to her boy.

Evidently she was not wholly convinced by the evidence as offered in the case, for when she saw her boy behind his iron grated door, she again knelt down on the floor and began to pray. She said in her petition to the Almighty that she had prayed from the time her son was born until the present that he be a Christian and that she would continue to supplicate her Creator. She asked that if Russell Knight and Joseph Abel, whose evidence convicted Fentress, had not told the truth, that the Lord would forgive them.

Moved by the powerful entreaty of his aged mother, Fentress wavered in the stoical attitude he had maintained all through the case and broke into tears. Then, as he bade his mother good-bye and turned to walk back from the door of his cell, he cried out, "I hope Knight and Abel will go to h—l."

"My son, don't say that," exclaimed his mother, as she ran back to the door of his cell.

"Well, I don't mean it that way," said Fentress. "I mean that because they haven't told the truth, they will go there."

The jury made quick work of the case, following the conclusion of the argument this afternoon. The attorneys consumed but two hours in oral

They restore the bowels and associate organs to more vigorous and healthy activity. They are eaten like candy, may be taken at any time without inconvenience, do not cause any griping, nausea, diarrhoea, excessive looseness, flatulence or other disagreeable effect. Price 25c and 10c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store—James H. Williams, 214 Main street.

work. The defense stuck to its theory that two men unknown to Fentress came up behind him and Constable J. T. Skaggs, of Clarkson, Ky., on the evening that the officer was shot to death, and that these strangers did the shooting.

The testimony of Knight and Abel, which was a complete identification of Fentress as the man who ran away from the scene of the shooting, was the strong point that the defense could not get around. Fentress will be taken to the penitentiary in a short time.

While it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—it is not beyond any one's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by all dealers.

Too Grasping. "The late Eli Perkins," said a magazine editor, "had an apt way of driving home his points with little stories."

"Perkins once offered me a sketch at a bargain price. I accepted the sketch eagerly, and I asked for more at the same figure."

"But Perkins," laughing sourly, shook his head.

"He said I reminded him of a tramp to whom a genial old lady gave a nickel, saying:

"Here my good man, take this nickel and drink my health in a glass of beer."

"Thank you, ma'am," said the tramp. "But you look so infirm, hadn't I better drink two beers?"

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by all dealers.

WISHES ASHES SCATTERED ON HUSBAND'S GRAVE

Biddeford, Me., Feb. 11.—Directions that her body be cremated and the ashes strewn over the grave of her husband, who is buried at Bergen, Norway, are contained in the will of Mrs. Sara C. Bull, widow of Ole Bull, the violinist. Mrs. Bull died in Cambridge, Mass., on Jan. 18. An estate valued at upwards of $500,000 is disposed of in the will. The principal beneficiary is a daughter, Olea Bull Vaughan, of Cambridge.

Croup Causes uneasy nights but if you will use Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey it will relieve in a few minutes. There is nothing better. Guaranteed by all dealers.

NO SATIN WORLD.
This is not a satin world where everything goes smooth,
No tent upon a silver shore nor yet an Orient booth.
This world is plain rag carpet, with some calico to boot,
And it does not please us, we will have to make it suit.

It's not all pleasant sailing on this ocean of our life,
For storms are always breaking and the deeps are stirred with strife.
It's quite a windy planet, with some thunder and some rain,
But, oh, how sweet its solace if we only bear its pain!

Some think it's velvet Brussels all along the daily road,
With naught but song and gladness and no bearing of the load.
It's not all woven tapestry by any means till you
Have borne your share of sorrow as the Lord ordains you to.

It's just a cornbread country, and the cake we eat we win
By sacrifice and service and a daily fight with sin.
So don't expect the roses while the garden's full of weeds,
And somewhere there's a brother with a heart that aches and bleeds!

GOVERNMENT WILL OUT THE PRINTING BUSINESS

Postmaster General Hitchcock has announced that after next January the Government will discontinue the printing of stamped envelopes and recommends that the same be done by the local newspapers in every town where there is a newspaper and by special permit for the towns nearest the newspaper where a town has no paper of its own. No large town will be allowed to have a monopoly on the printing of the envelopes to the detriment of the smaller newspapers.

A uniform scale of printing will be prepared by the post-office department and insisted upon, or the newspaper will not be sold stamped envelopes for printing. The scale of printing will be such that a reasonable profit can be made by the office printing them. The department will also soon make a ruling that no first-class mail will be allowed transmission through the mails until it has a return card written or printed thereon.

SHARKS HOLD UP STEAMER—INCIDENT OF THE OCEAN

Sharks delayed the progress of the Royal Mail steamer Marima, which arrived here Tuesday. For three days she drifted idle and helpless because of a school of about 20 man-eaters which hovered about the stern.

During a storm a quantity of rope on the afterdeck was washed overboard and became hopelessly entangled in the propeller. Sailors were let overboard and they prepared to cut away the knotted mass with hatchets. They were surrounded by sharks in an instant and soon the men had their hands full defending themselves with their hatchets.

The sailors refused to make further attempts after being hauled up from their first experience. Efforts to frighten the sharks away were futile. The skipper ordered all refuse kept on board. At the end of three days, deprived of food, the sharks departed and the propeller was freed.—[Port Limon (Costa Rica) Cor. New York Sun.

In Memory of Sister Anna Russell Layton.

Rockport Chapter, No. 103, O. E. S., Rockport, Ky.

On January 4, 1911, the death angel again summoned one (Sister Anna Layton) from our chapter to the Grand Chapter on high, adding another link to the endless golden chain now forming around the Star of Bethlehem. Her kind disposition and fine character won for her much affection and admiration.

Whereas, Our chapter has lost an excellent member, her church one of its best and most faithful members, her home a devoted wife and daughter and a perfect mother, and her friends a dear associate.

Resolved, That our heartfelt sympathies be extended to the bereaved family, feeling assured that as she was inspired by the Star of Bethlehem, she has been guided to her eternal home not made with hands. Not long shall they await e'er they will follow our sister. May her innocent babies receive God's richest blessings.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our chapter, one presented to her family and one sent to each county paper.

A Reliable Cough Medicine.

It is a valuable family friend. Foley's Honey and Tar fulfils this condition exactly. Mrs. Charles Kline, N. 8th St., Easton, Pa. states: "Several members of my family have been cured of bad coughs and colds by the use of Foley's Honey and Tar and I am never without a bottle in the house. It soothes and relieves the irritation in the throat and loosens up the cold. I have always found it a reliable cough cure and do not hesitate to recommend it highly." For la grippe coughs and stuffy colds, for children and grown persons and for delicate persons, use only Foley's Honey and Tar. Contains no opiates. For sale by all druggists.

Horses and Mules Cremated.

Leitchfield, Ky., Feb. 8.—The brick livery stable at this place, operated by Milam Bros., burned this morning at 4 o'clock. Two horses, two mules, several vehicles and large quantities of hay and corn were consumed by the flames. The loss is estimated at $3,000 to $4,000. The origin of the fire is not known.

People with kidney ills want to be cured. When one suffers the tortures of an aching back, relief is eagerly sought for. There are many remedies to-day that relieve but do not cure. Here is evidence to prove that Doan's Kidney Pills cure, and the cure is lasting:

J. C. Weatherholt, High street, Cloverport, Ky., says: "Two years ago I did not think it possible that I could ever be well again, in fact, I had settled up my affairs. I cannot describe the misery I endured from pains through my back. Whenever I stooped, the pains became so sharp that it really seemed as if someone were thrusting a knife into my kidneys. I was often very dizzy, dark spots floated before my eyes and I had to grasp something to keep from falling. My joints became swollen to twice their natural size and I lost weight rapidly until I was almost a skeleton. The doctors' medicines or the many guaranteed kidney cures that I tried, did not help me and finally it was my good fortune to hear about Doan's Kidney Pills. I immediately procured a box and I was gratified with the results received. Before I had taken the contents of the second box, there was a marked improvement and I continued using this remedy until I was completely cured. I am now as well as any man in this county and I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

POLICE OF PARIS.

Their Methods Effective Even if Sometimes Dramatic.

TESTING A MAN OF COURAGE.

The Secret Service Knew More About His Own Affairs Than He Did Himself and Proved It in a Most Startling and Conclusive Manner.

The police of Paris have always made it a rule to keep closely in touch with the criminal element, the spies and secret officials of the department posing as criminals among the real criminals when necessary to learn their secrets. The following incident, in which the national impulse for dramatic effect crops out, will serve to illustrate how well at times they do their work:

At the beginning of the French revolution the chief of the police of Paris had upon his register the names of no fewer than 2,000 suspected and depraved characters whose pursuits were known to be of a criminal nature.

A merchant of high respectability in Bordeaux had occasion to visit Paris upon commercial business, carrying with him bills and money to a very large amount. On his arrival at the gates of the French metropolis a genteel looking man opened the door of the carriage and addressed him to this effect:

"Sir, I have been waiting for you some time. According to my notes, you were to arrive at this hour, and, your person, your carriage and your portmanteau exactly answering the description I hold in my hand, you will permit me to have the honor of conducting you to M. de Sartine."

The gentleman, astonished and alarmed at this interruption and still more at hearing the name of the chief inspector of the police mentioned, demanded to know what M. de Sartine wanted with him, adding that he had never committed any offense against the laws and that the police could have no right to detain him.

The messenger declared himself ignorant of the cause of the detention and said that when he had conducted him to M. de Sartine he should have executed his orders. After some further explanations the gentleman permitted the officer to conduct him to the police official.

M. de Sartine, the chief of police, received him with great politeness and, after requesting him to be seated, to his astonishment described his portmanteau and told him the exact amount in bills and cash which he had brought with him to Paris, where he was to lodge, his usual time of going to bed and a number of other circumstances which he had conceived were known only to himself.

Having thus excited his attention, M. de Sartine asked him:

"Sir, are you a man of courage?"

The gentleman, still more astonished at the singularity of his interrogatory, demanded the reason why such a question was put to him, adding that no man had hitherto doubted his courage.

"Sir, you are to be robbed and murdered this night," replied M. de Sartine. "If you are a man of courage you must go to your hotel and retire to rest at the usual hour. But be careful not to fall asleep. Neither will it be proper for you to look under your bed or into the closet which is in your chamber. You must place your portmanteau in its usual situation near the bed and betray no suspicion. Leave what remains to me. If you do not feel your courage sufficient to bear you out I will procure some one who will personate you and go to bed in your stead."

The merchant, being convinced that M. de Sartine's information was accurate in every particular, refused to be personated and resolved to follow literally the directions he had received.

He accordingly drove to the hotel and went to bed at his usual hour, 11 o'clock. At half past 12—the time mentioned by M. de Sartine—the door of his bedchamber was quietly forced open, and three men entered with a dark lantern, daggers and pistols. The merchant, who pretended to be asleep, perceived one of them to be his own servant. They rifled his portmanteau undisturbed and discussed and settled the plan of putting him to death.

Hearing all this and not knowing by what means he was to be rescued, the merchant was under great perturbation of mind during such an interval of suspense.

Just at the moment the villains were preparing to take the merchant's life four police officers, who were concealed under the bed and in the closet, rushed out and seized the offenders in the very act of attempting murder and with the stolen property in their possession. The law made short work of the criminals, and the police congratulated the merchant on his courage and coolness.

RESTITUTION MADE OF MONEY STOLEN LONG AGO

Glasgow, Ky., Feb. 9.—In an effort to make restitution, an anonymous writer of Oxford, O., this week returned a sum of money which he stole fifteen years ago to its owner, Grant Vanfleet, of this place. Many years ago Vanfleet conducted a dry goods store in Oxford, O. One night his store was robbed and a sum of money taken. He employed detectives and tried to capture the robbers, but was unsuccessful.

He came to Kentucky several years ago to live and had given up all hopes of the money, when to his surprise he received the letter from the unknown writer this week with a large sum of money, but no explanation. The letter came from Oxford, O., and corresponds with the amount of money stolen and Vanfleet feels sure the thief returned the stolen money in order to relieve his guilty conscience.

JOHNSON'S WITHDRAWAL—WHAT IT MAY MEAN

The Owensboro Messenger says:

The withdrawal of Ben Johnson from the race for Governor, under such circumstances as are described in his card, is most deplorable. Undoubtedly Mr. Johnson has been hounded and secretly stabbed for months by contemptible whispers and suggestions that, on account of his religion, he could not be elected Governor of Kentucky, but we cannot believe that any of the appellate court judges has declared he would not vote for him as the party nominee on this account. This is inconceivable. Mr. Johnson has manifestly been misled in this matter.

While he has undoubtedly been persecuted by covert attacks, we regret that Mr. Johnson, as a Democrat, in withdrawing from the race for Governor, felt it necessary to write this letter, which may result in great misfortune to the Democratic party in Kentucky. Its consequences cannot be fully measured to-day. It will infuriate many people at least for a time. It may cause some radical realignments before the primary is over and render the result in November gravely doubtful.

We have surely had enough of bitter personalities between Democrats in Kentucky in the past several years, the consequences of which we are suffering now. We had hoped to see a good-natured rivalry for the nominations this spring and an easy party victory in the fall.

The responsibility for the present unhappy situation, however, is not primarily upon Ben Johnson and his friends, much as the manner of Mr. Johnson's withdrawal is to be regretted. The assaults upon Johnson, who is a manly man, originated with bitter, implacable, personal enemies, who did not fight him fairly in the open, and Senator McCreary would better have a care not to lend himself to these people and their schemes.

Life Saved at Death's Door.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes W. R. Patterson, of Wellington, Tex., "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 100 pounds, in spite of doctor's treatment for two years. TOBACCO ACREAGE IS NOT LIMITED

The A. S. of E. Reconsiders Its Action.

ALSO AGAINST RECIPROCITY

Good Roads Advocate Lost a Fine Resolution for Lack of a Second.

MEETING LARGELY ATTENDED

At the meeting of the delegates of the Green River District of the American Society of Equity, held at the court house in Owensboro, Feb. 2, a committee, composed of Frank K. Moseley, of Daviess county; J. B. Holland, of Hancock county; John Cullen, of McLean county; L. V. Brown, of Indiana, and S. L. Stevens, of Ohio county, was appointed to confer with the directors of the Home Warehouse company, for the purpose of attempting to perfect a plan, whereby the Home Warehouse company is to sell the crop of tobacco pooled with the A. S. of E., and receive a commission of one per cent. out of which the dues of each pooler with the A. S. of E., is to be paid. This was the most important action taken by the delegates, and the committee will meet with the directors of the Home Warehouse company to discuss the plan Thursday (to-morrow).

The district meeting, which was largely attended by members of the society from Daviess, McLean, Hancock and Ohio counties, was called to order by President W. P. Stevens, of McLean county. Immediately after the meeting had convened, the question of reconsidering the action taken at the last district meeting, when it was voted to limit the acreage to 10,000 hills, was brought up by J. W. Dunn, of Whitesville. The question to reconsider the delegates' former action caused a rather heated discussion, but by a vote of twenty-six to eleven, the motion to reconsider was adopted. The passage of this motion leaves no limit to the quantity of tobacco that can be raised by one man, and the society will only recommend that the members attempt to hold the crop down. According to those championing the motion to take off the bridge, the action was taken because the members of the Green River Tobacco Growers' Association usually grow as large a crop as they care to, or can.

Good Roads Advocate. Frank K. Moseley offered a resolution, which was lost because of the lack of a second to his motion for its adoption, indorsing the action of several representative citizens and clubs of the State concerning the movement for good roads throughout the State. The resolution provided that the Green River district of the American Society of Equity go on record as an advocate of good roads, and that the society use its influence at the next meeting of the General Assembly in an effort to have that body enact laws for the building of good roads.

The resolution further provided that the society go on record as favoring the passage of a law making it a penalty for the hauling of more than 1,000 pounds on a wagon with a tire less than three and one-half inches wide.

Opposes Reciprocity. The delegates voted unanimously for the resolution offered by Frank Moseley placing the American Society of Equity on record against the Canadian reciprocity measure.

The resolution in full is as follows: Whereas, through the press of the country, we have heard of a proposed agreement between this country and Canada, whereby this country proposes to reduce the tariff on certain articles, almost entirely products of the farm, and in return proposes to reduce the tariff on certain articles, mostly manufactures, and whereas, it is known to all men that under the present tariff scheme the farmer is the least protected of any class in the country, therefore be it Resolved, That we recommend that our secretary instruct the Congressmen and Senators from Kentucky that we are opposed to the ratification of this measure, and we ask them to stand against it, and stand for a yea and nay vote on it when it is presented to Congress for consideration.

SPECIAL NOTICE

In regard to
OBITUARIES, RESOLUTIONS
OF RESPECT, &c.

The Hartford Herald has adopted a new rule in regard to Obituaries, Resolutions of Respect, Cards of Thanks, &c., whether written at the behest of lodges, churches or individuals, and that is, we shall charge at the rate of two cents per line for all such articles, except obituary poetry, which will be one cent per word, straight. This is the smallest rate we charge for anything and is only one-fifth of our regular rate. The amount, in cash or stamps, must accompany each article, or it will not be printed. Six words average a line in ordinary reading and every separate character or initial letter counts as a word. The heading and the signature both count one line each, even if they are only a word or two. All obituary poetry, if straight through, one cent per word.

Our old rule in regard to Obituaries, &c. was 150 words free, balance a cent a word, but this did not prove satisfactory because the bounds were almost always overstepped, and we have been forced to adopt this new rule, which is in effect from now on. Contributors will please remember.

Tortured for 15 Years

By a cure-defying stomach trouble that baffled doctors, and resisted all remedies he tried, John W. Modders, of Moddersville, Mich., seemed doomed. He had to sell his farm and give up work. His neighbors said, "he can't live much longer." "Whatever I ate distressed me," he wrote, "till I tried Electric Bitters, which worked such wonders for me that I can now eat things I could not take for years. It's surely a grand remedy for stomach trouble." Just as good for the liver and kidneys. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50c at James H. Williams, 214 Main street.

BECOMES INSANE AFTER EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

Brandenburg Ky., Feb. 10.—News has been received here that Sam C. Lewis, cashier of the distinct State Bank of Ekron, this county, who was indicted on eleven counts following the bank's failure, has been adjudged insane in Owen county, his former home, and ordered committed to an asylum.

After being indicted here, Lewis gave bond for $4,000 and returned with his father to Owen county. He was succeeded as cashier by A. C. Crouch, who is also under indictment.

A Big Magazine Consolidation. Through an amalgamation just effected, three well-established and well known publications are hereafter to be published by one Company, although no change in the policy or personnel of editorial management is to take place.

The Crowell Publishing Company, owners of Woman's Home Companion and Farm and Fireside, takes over the American Magazine and will publish it in conjunction with its other two publications. Mr. George H. Hazen is President of the Crowell Publishing Company; Mr. H. J. Fisher is General Manager.

The three publications in quite distinct fields are at the highest point of success yet attained. The Woman's Home Companion, which occupies a powerful position in the woman's field and whose growth has been phenomenal, is edited by Gertrude B. Lane and numbers on its staff Hayden Carruth, Grace M. Gould and Sophie Kerr Underwood. Farm and Fireside, edited by Herbert Quick, formerly of Sioux City, Iowa, is an agricultural paper of high quality and wide national circulation which is the leading exponent of up-to-date agricultural methods.

This amalgamation will make for increased efficiency and influence in the case of all three of these publications.

A HOME TREATMENT FOR LUNG TROUBLE.

It is a recognized fact that fresh air, plenty of nourishing food and a correct constitutional treatment have done more to cure lung trouble and that weakened, run-down feeling, than all other forms of treatment combined.

A constitutional treatment, to meet all the necessary requirements, must not only kill and remove all the disease germs from the system, but at the same time it must increase the appetite, aid in digestion and assimilation of food, renovate and build up the nervous system and all parts of the body.

Germinal Remedy meets all these requirements and is producing some marvelous results.

If you have consumption in any form, blood disease; if you are troubled with ulcers or chronic sores, coughs, pains in the chest; if you have weak lungs and feel generally run down and weak, write the Ohio Medical Co., Box 95, Columbus, Ohio, and they will send you a full sized bottle of this medicine absolutely free, as a trial, if you will mention the name of Hartford Herald.

The Capitol Dome.

The capitol dome at Washington is the only considerable dome of iron in the world. It is a vast hollow sphere weighing 8,000,000 pounds. How much is that? More than 4,000 tons, or almost the weight of 70,000 full grown persons, or about equal to 1,000 laden coal cars of four tons each, which, if strung out one behind the other, would occupy a mile and a half of track. On the very top of the dome the allegorical figure "America," weighing 13,985 pounds, lifts its proud head high in the air. The pressure of this dome and figure upon the piers and pillars is 14,477 pounds to the square foot. It would, however, require a pressure of 75,286 pounds to the square foot to crush the supports.

HENRY THE THIEF.

The Black Heart of the Greely Arctic Expedition.

STORY OF HIS EXECUTION.

The Order Issued by the Emaciated Commander and the Way It Was Carried Out—The Rifle Shot That Put an End to the Traitor.

One of the many tragedies of the Greely arctic expedition was the execution of Private Henry, who had been caught time after time stealing food from the scant store of the starving party. Henry alone was strong and active, thanks to the stolen food and to the fact that he did no labor he could possibly shirk.

Lieutenant Greely had warned and warned Henry and had punished him, but to no avail, and finally, after a particularly despicable act of theft, the commander, in fear that Henry's course would cause a general raid on the store of food and thus bring about the destruction of the whole party, condemned Henry to death.

The story of the execution, which makes a new page in history, is told in the American Magazine by Frank B. Copley, who got his data direct from the survivors of the expedition. He writes:

"All his lethargy gone, Greely dismissed the man, seized pencil and paper and, with trembling, emaciated fingers, wrote:

"Near Cape Sabine, June 6, 1881. "Sergeants Brainard, Long and Frederick. "Notwithstanding promises given by Private C. B. Henry yesterday, he has since, as acknowledged to me, tampered with seal tongs if not other food at the old camp. This perfidy and audacity is the destruction of the party if not at once ended. Private Henry will be shot today, all care being taken to prevent his injuring any one, as his physical strength is greater than that of any two men. Decide the manner of his death by two ball and one blank cartridge. This order is imperative and absolutely necessary for any chance of life. A. W. GREELY."

"In the official report of the Lady Franklin bay expedition it is simply announced that 'shots were heard about 2 o'clock, and later the order was read to the general party.' The manner in which the order was executed here appears for the first time.

"Sergeants Brainard, Long and Frederick could not, as ordered, 'decide the manner of death by two ball and one blank cartridge.' Greely had failed to take into consideration that at this time the party had left only one serviceable rifle.

"The three sergeants drew lots to see who would do the shooting. When they had done so they bound themselves with an oath that the identity of the man thus chosen never should be revealed.

"Henry was at the tent on Cemetery ridge with all the other men when the time for putting him to death came. What was to take place, of course, was known only to the three sergeants and the commander. Two of the sergeants remained in the vicinity of the old hut, while the third went to the tent to bring Henry down.

"The man who went for Henry told him that he was wanted at the old camp to help carry up some more of the supplies that had been left there. Suspecting nothing, Henry readily accompanied the sergeant to the place chosen for putting him to death.

"Now, Greely had repeatedly cautioned the three sergeants to take no chances on Henry's getting away, for, although none at Cape Sabine knew the man's past history, enough of the man's black soul had been revealed to make his comrades feel that no crime could be put past him.

"So Brainard, Long and Frederick, cautioned by their commander and warned by their own knowledge of the man with whom they had to deal, had decided that Henry should be made to stoop to pick up something and that then he should be shot from behind. At least one of the sergeants had no more compunction about killing him than he would have had about killing a mad dog.

"But one of the other two men weakened at the last moment. To shoot a man in cold blood from behind, to send him into eternity with no opportunity to compose his soul, was too terrible a thing for him to stand. It was a mistake that nearly proved disastrous.

"Henry was told face to face that he was to be put to death in accordance with the order of the commander, and he was advised to kneel and make his peace with his God. At the same time the executioner appeared with his rifle at a convenient distance before the doomed man's eyes.

"Henry stood agape. He muttered something about something not being right. Near where the third sergeant stood an ax lay on the ground. Henry's gaze, searching the ground, encountered the ax. He sprang for it. A warning cry was raised. The sergeant who stood near the ax jumped and got his foot on it almost as Henry was upon him. There was a cry of 'Quick!' Even then there was danger of the executioner shooting his fellow sergeant if his aim was the least unsteady.

"But despite all he had been through the aim of the executioner was true. The rifle cracked, and the bullet sped, penetrating the breast of the man for whom it was intended when it was molded. Henry whirled, crying: 'You have tricked me! You have tricked me!' Again the rifle cracked. The second bullet went through Henry's head, and he fell dead."

AFTER THE TEMPEST.

The Genial Calm That Settled Over the Pretty Schoolma'am.

A pretty schoolma'am once taught school in a Long Island village. All the young fellows for miles around were mad about her, but the schoolma'am was proud, and none of the boys seemed to stand the ghost of a chance.

Young Jim Brown, the judge's son, was the best looking chap in the town, and Jim probably loved the schoolma'am more than any of her other swains, but he never had the pluck to declare himself. He felt too small and mean before the beauty and learning of the schoolma'am. But one day, the schoolma'am being away on a visit in New York state, Jim asked advice of the editor. The editor said:

"Take the bull by the horns and insert an announcement of your forthcoming marriage in my society column. It will cost you only 50 cents." So Jim inserted an announcement to the effect that the schoolma'am and he would be married the next month and would spend their honeymoon at Atlantic City.

Well, a short time after this announcement appeared the schoolma'am came back home. Jim heard on all sides how furious she was. For several days he kept away from her. Then one afternoon as she was coming home from school he ran plump into her in the lane.

She let him know at once what she thought of him and his outrageous conduct. She stormed and raved, and her pretty eyes flashed fire. Jim stood first on one foot and then on the other, and finally he blurted out:

"Well, if you don't like it I can have the announcement contradicted."

"Oh, bother it!" said the schoolma'am. "It's too late now."—Washington Star.

THEY LIKE PRISON LIFE.

A Class of Persons in Japan Who Try to Break Into Jail.

In Japan there are people who make sham confessions in order to obtain a period of the comparative warmth and comfort of a Japanese prison. The Japan Mail says: "The police slang of the capital has words to describe and distinguish these persons. 'Meshikui' or the rice criminal, will steal some small article from a shop front in such a way as to be seen doing it. He then makes a bolt of it, pursued by the master of the shop, or some faithful kozo, but presently allows himself to be caught and handed to the police. He has to 'do time' for his pretended theft, but his rice is secured for a period, and when that period has elapsed he will allow himself to be caught again.

"The 'unadon,' or 'eel bowl' criminal, is wittier than the one just mentioned. He does not actually commit a crime, such as will put him into the convict side of the prison, but allows himself to be found looking in suspicious places, underneath the broad verandas of a temple, or in the garden of a private house. He gets into prison all right, but he secures the more generous treatment of the house of detention, which is to the fare of the convict jail what a dish of eels is to a bowl of plain rice.

"The 'kuruma' is a criminal who makes a sham confession in order to sneak a free railway ride. The Asahi tells of a case connected with a murder, known as the 'decapitated corpse case,' which took place last year. A man gave himself up to the police in Sendai as the perpetrator of the crime. He was brought to Tokyo and his story investigated. It was found to be a pure fabrication."

A Strauss Story.

A French contemporary tells a piquant story of the composer of "Salome." He was dining one night with a party of musical friends when the conversation turned on the compositions of the Kaiser. Some of the guests had expressed their opinions pretty freely when Herr Strauss put his finger to his lips and said: "Sh-sh! You should never run down the compositions of crowned heads in company. There is no telling who wrote them."

Some Letters.

An ingenious person has discovered that the three most forcible letters in our alphabet are N R G (energy), that the two which contain nothing are M T (empty), that four express great corpulence, O B C T (obesity); that two are in a decline, D K (decay); that four indicate exalted station, X L N C (excellency), and three excite our tears, yet when pronounced together are necessary to a good understanding—L E G (elegy and leg).

Willing to Compromise.

"Didn't you promise never to do that again?" "Yes, father." "And didn't I promise to whale you good if you didn't?" "Yes, but I broke me promise and won't hold you to yours."—Toledo Blade.

To the Point.

At a teacher's conference one of the school principals rose to propose the toast, "Long live the teachers." And a meager, pallid assistant instructor in a hollow voice asked, "On what?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Its Resemblance.

"Did the man whose auto was in collision last night give it a cursory examination?" "It sounded that way, sir."—Baltimore American.

Advice is not disliked because it is advice, but because so few people know how to give it.—Leigh Hunt.
